Chairman's Welcome

Welcome to Canada's National Junior A Hockey Championship. During this week we will experience the excitement of watching the country's top Junior A teams compete for the national title of 1996.

The game of hockey is so very much a part of our Canadian Heritage. And, at this, the first Royal Bank Cup, we are reminded of the rich and illustrious history of the Centennial Cup which celebrated its 25th anniversary just last year. Royal Bank is indeed pleased to have the opportunity to share in this history and is committed to continue the legacy of excellence in the game of hockey.

A special thanks to the many organizers and volunteers here in Melfort. Your dedication, hard work and hospitality has helped make this an outstanding event.

And to each player, congratulations on your success and accomplishments this season. Have fun and good luck!

John E. Cleghorn

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Royal Bank
Président du Conseil et chef de la direction,
La Banque Royale

Le hockey fait partie intégrante de l'héritage canadien. Ce premier championnat de la Coupe Banque Royale nous donne l'occasion de nous rappeler les faits marquants de la Coupe centennale dont le 25<sup>e</sup> anniversaire a été célébré l'an dernier. La Banque Royale est très heureuse de participer à ce moment de l'histoire et s'engage à continuer de promouvoir l'excellence au hockey.

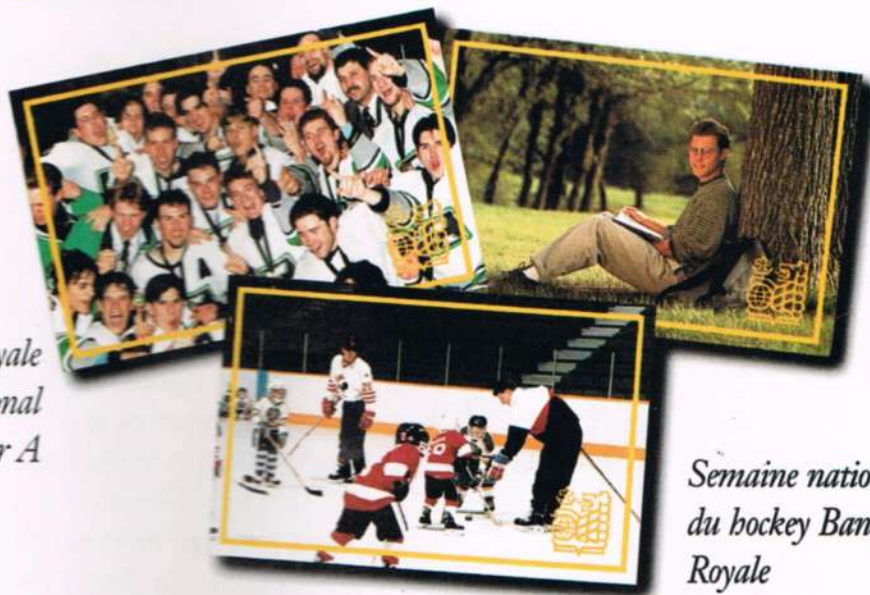

J'aimerais remercier particulièrement les nombreux organisateurs et bénévoles de Melfort. Grâce à leur ardeur et à leur hospitalité, cet événement revêt un caractère exceptionnel.

Enfin, j'adresse mes félicitations à tous les joueurs pour le succès qu'ils ont remporté cette année. Je leur souhaite bien du plaisir et bonne chance.

Le hockey sur glace, sport national joué devant des millions d'amateurs au pays, symbolise la compétition par excellence.

Mais, le hockey a aussi une autre signification profonde à nos yeux. Il incarne l'effort collectif, l'initiative, la persévérance et la volonté de réussir. Des qualités qui continuent de forger les caractères bien au-delà du dernier coup de filet.

Le hockey ce n'est pas seulement une question de marquer des buts. C'est aussi apprendre à participer au match de la vie!

On behalf of Canadian Hockey, it gives me great pleasure to extend my warmest greetings and best wishes to the players, coaches, officials, spectators, volunteers and media who have gathered in Melfort, to participate in the Royal Bank Cup National Junior 'A' Hockey Championship.

Canadian Hockey appreciates the ongoing support of our corporate sponsors, Esso, Air Canada and Royal Bank, who share the belief that through the medium of hockey competition lies the nurturing of social, emotional, spiritual and physical values.

We are extremely grateful to the host committee and all volunteers for their tireless efforts in making this championship a memorable one for the participants. Their willingness to work in conjunction with our corporate sponsors to enhance the quality of this event is a lesson in teamwork for all.

I know that everyone associated with this prestigious event will enjoy the exciting hockey to be played with a high degree of skill. I wish all teams the best of luck and remind them that the true value of participating in this championship will ultimately be measured by what was learned and friendships established rather than what is won.

Au nom du Hockey Canadien, il me fait très plaisir d'offrir mes salutations les plus chaleureuses et mes meilleurs vœux à toutes les joueuses, entraîneurs, officiels, spectateurs, bénévoles et média qui sont réunis à Melfort pour participer la Coupe Banque Royale, championnat national de hockey junior 'A'.

Le Hockey Canadien apprécie le soutien constant de ses commanditaires corporatifs, Esso, Air Canada et Banque Royale, qui partagent la croyance que, par le biais de la compétition de hockey, on trouve les bases des valeurs sociales, émotionnelles, spirituelles et physiques.

Nous sommes extrêmement reconnaissants envers le comité organisateur et tous les bénévoles pour leurs valeureux efforts pour faire de ce championnat un événement mémorable pour les participantes. Leur désir de travailler en collaboration avec nos commanditaires corporatifs pour améliorer la qualité de cet événement est une leçon, pour tout le monde, de travail d'équipe.

Je sais que tous ceux qui sont associés à ce prestigieux événement profiteront d'un hockey excitant joué à un haut niveau. Je souhaite à toutes les équipes la meilleure des chances et leur rappelle que la vraie valeur de la participation à ce championnat sera ultimement mesurée parce qu'il y aura été appris et les amitiés établies plus que par ce qui y aura été remporté.

"Matthew's Coach huddles the team around the bench. There is only time for one last word of inspiring advice . . ." writes Jo Bannatyne-Cugnet, author of A PRAIRIE YEAR in her story "January".

Yvette Moore's painting clearly illustrates the excitement as the teams warm up and prepare for what will be a match of hockey skills, wit and a lot of determination to be the best.

The Centennial Cup

25 Years of History

Surely one of the greatest hockey memories that comes to mind is Paul Henderson's last-minute goal that saved the pride of a country and gave Canada a win over the Russians in the 1972 Summit Series.

Another must be of Bobby Orr flying through the air, parallel to the ice, arms raised in exultation after scoring the winning goal in overtime that gave the Bruins a Stanley Cup victory in 1970, Boston's first title in 29 years.

Those and countless other memories stir the passion for the game in the hearts of hockey fans.

A year after Orr's goal, the first national junior A hockey championship for the Centennial Cup was won by the Red Deer Rustlers of the Alberta Junior Hockey League.

As we head into the 26th national junior A championship, and the inaugural Royal Bank Cup, it's time to look back on some of great moments of the Centennial Cup.

During the championship game of the 1991 Centennial Cup in Sudbury, the general manager and owner of the Vernon Lakers was locked in his team's dressing room from the first intermission until after the final buzzer.

Lakers GM Mel Lis ran to his team's dressing room during the intermission in the championship game in Sudbury to answer a call of nature.

"I was in there using the can," Lis explains, "and when I tried to get out, the door was locked. Our trainer had locked it with a padlock on the outside."

Lis banged on the door and screamed at the top of his lungs, but his noise went unheard. The crowd in the arena had created a din that virtually silenced Lis's pleas for help.

But a strange thing happened while he was imprisoned. The Lakers, who were down by a goal after the first period, rallied to score two unanswered goals in the second.

When the padlock was unlocked during the second intermission, Lis was rescued.

But he decided to stay put.

"The guys were down a goal when I went in there and got locked in, so I decided not to change things. They were doing better when I was out of the picture."

So Lis stayed in the dressing room during the third period, only to emerge at the end of the game for the Lakers' celebration of their 8-4 win over the host Sudbury Cubs. It was their second straight Centennial Cup with coach Ed Johnstone, a former NHLer with the New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings.

The year before, the Lakers had beaten the heavily favored New Westminster Royals in overtime in front of a home crowd.

"The second win was nice, but the first was by far the best," says Lis, whose team made four straight trips to the championship from 1989 to '92. "TSN broadcast the game (live) across Canada and somebody said it was the best junior game ever on TV."

Back in 1971, a long time before an all-sports television network existed in Canada, the first Centennial Cup title series was played in Charlottetown (From 1971 through 1978 the championship was decided in league playoffs that led to a seven-game series between the nation's top two teams. From 1979 to '81, the format changed to a round-robin tournament, then went back to a seven-game series from 1982 to '84. It has been a round robin since 1985.) A ticket to the final between Red Deer and the host Charlottetown Islanders was the hottest item in town.

"Their fans were literally hanging from the rafters!" recalls Perry Pearn, who played on that Red Deer team. He couldn't believe his eyes, which were 19 years old at the time.

"I remember all these kids almost hanging from the roof," says Pearn, who is now an assistant coach with the Winnipeg Jets. "(The Charlottetown Gardens) was an old wooden building. There were so many people, there was absolutely no place for (the spare players) to sit. They had to stand around the boards where the Zamboni came out."

Despite the outstanding play of Islanders star Al MacAdam, who also coached the St. Thomas University Tommies of the AUAA, the Rustlers stole the Cup from the host team in six games.

"I remember MacAdam for Charlottetown. The story was that he'd be out on the fishing boat with his dad all day, and then come to the rink and play."

MacAdam, who went on to play 12 NHL seasons, actually was an apprentice fisherman at the time. "It wasn't tough," MacAdam says from his Fredericton office. "It's just what you had to do back then."

The road to the championship was as memorable for Pearn as the national title series.

In a rough-and-tumble quarter-final series against the Penticton Broncos, the Rustlers lost the first two games but eventually won the series in seven.

Then the Rustlers hit the rails and traveled by train to Winnipeg, where they swept the St. Boniface Saints in four straight to win the western championship.

"I think it's the last time in hockey that a team traveled by train," says Pearn, who 22 years later went on to coach the Canadian national junior team to a world championship in 1993.

"The contacts I made off that team have had a major impact on my hockey career," says Pearn.

Champions de 1995 - Les Canucks de Calgary

The Cup always attracts scouts from both colleges and the professional ranks. Dave Siciliano, coach of the 1989 and 1991 national champion Thunder Bay Flyers, believes many of his players were "discovered" at the Centennial Cup tournaments.

"It gives players a good chance to be noticed outside the next level of hockey," says Siciliano.

The Flyers' championships helped increase interest in minor hockey in Thunder Bay.

"They fell in love with our team and they fell in love with our players," says Siciliano. "It gave a boost to minor hockey because the younger players looked up to our players. It gave them an incentive to work toward."

Through the years, the Cup has always featured long lists of players whose names are easily recognized by NHL fans.

John Van Boxmeer, now coach of the Rochester Americans in the American Hockey League, played for the champion Guelph CMCs in 1972. He was a teammate of Doug Risebrough, the former Montreal Canadiens player who went on to be general manager of the Calgary Flames.

Mark and Marty Howe, the sons of Gordie, played for the Detroit Jr. Red Wings, who won the Ontario league championship in 1971.

Bryan Murray, now GM of the Florida Panthers, coached the Rockland (Ontario) Nationals to the championship in 1976.

Terry Simpson, now a coach for the Winnipeg Jets, guided the Prince Albert Raiders to three Centennial Cups - in 1977, '79 and '81. "They were good times," says Simpson. "They helped me in my coaching career."

Three of the famous Sutter brothers - Brent, Rich and Ron - helped the Red Deer Rustlers win a second Cup in 1980. A teammate was defenceman Randy Moller, who played for the Quebec Nordiques, Rangers and last season for the Buffalo Sabres. Moller teamed up with brother Mike in 1982 to win gold at the World Junior Championship, the first year Canada sent a true national team.

Joe Murphy, the first pick in the 1986 NHL draft, was the top scorer in the 1985 tournament, when his Penticton team was runner-up to the Orillia Travelways.

In 1988, the famed Notre Dame Hounds from Saskatchewan took the Cup with help from Rod Brind'Amour and goalie Curtis Joseph, who went on to become a top-notch NHL goalie with the St. Louis Blues.

"The Royal Bank Cup and junior A hockey is a very important link in our hockey system," says Don Valcour, Canadian Hockey council representative for junior hockey. "For the kids coming into the Royal Bank Cup, it's a very exciting thing."

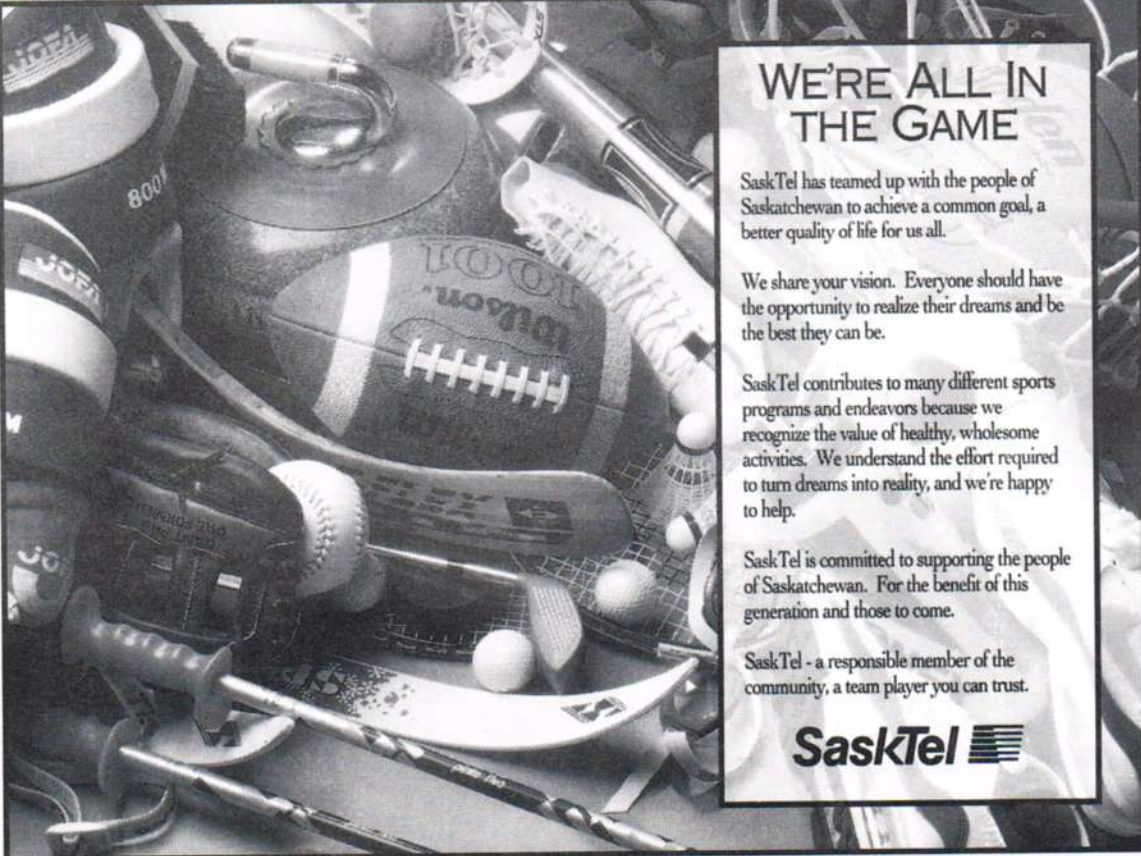

Gloucester, Ontario, hosted that the 1995 Centennial Cup, which saw the Calgary Canucks edge the hometown favourites, Gloucester Rangers, in the final, but this year, the Melfort Mustangs of the Saskatchewan Junior A Hockey League will welcome the 26th national tournament, at which teams from across the country will compete for junior A hockey's top prize - the Royal Bank Cup.

HISTORY ON ICE

Hockey life begins early for most Canadian kids. At ages five and six, they take to the ice for the first time. Saturday nights, they watch the pros on TV and dream of some day wearing an NHL jersey.

Wendel Clark, Theoren Fleury and Jeff Friesen are just a few Saskatchewan boys who participated in Junior A Hockey and realized their dreams when they became players in the National Hockey League.

There's no better place to see future hockey greats than at the 1996 Royal Bank Cup.

It's history in the making!

Hockey Week*

Hockey. Played on the ice. In head to head competition. Before millions of Canadians. This is our game.

But what makes Canadian hockey so much a part of our lives is what the game stands for. Hockey provides the arena for some of life's most important lessons about teamwork, leadership and personal growth. Qualities that continue to shape character long after the final whistle.

Hockey is more than scoring goals, it's about being part of the game of life.

Royal Bank and hockey.
Setting goals for life.
