LOOK BACK FIVE YEARS

MAY, 1977

Vernon's John Tykalovich rolled a whopping 418 in league roll-offs last week at Lincoln Lanes.

Soccer great remains busy

PELE
. . . corporate life

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Dressed in a business suit instead of a soccer uniform, Pele politely jets around the world these days at a pace more frenetic than when he was a superstar centre.

When he retired five years ago from New York Cosmos, the North American Soccer League team owned by Warner Communications, Pele became the conglomerate's good-will representative.

Last year, he spent two months filming Victory, taking the role of an Allied soldier who played soccer in a Second World War prisoner of war camp.

A few months ago, after plugging Atari video games in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, Pele zipped to England for a World Cup news conference, then stopped in Rio de Janiero before coming to Giants Stadium here for the Cosmos' home opener. The day after the game, Pele flew to Taiwan for the opening of a new Warner plant.

Is the corporate life difficult for a 40-year-old man who devoted his life to soccer.

"Yes, yes, because I don't really feel like that," said Pele.

Clad in a gray, three-piece suit, Pele squinted through the sunshine as he watched the Cosmos practice recently, gazing at former teammates, such as striker Giorgio Chinaglia, working up a sweat.

'GO TO PRACTICE'

"I never really stay away," Pele said. "When I'm in Europe, I go to practice there.

"When I'm in South America, I practice with Santos. I play against the kids, and the kids beat you all the time."

Pele will be in Spain from June 10 through the end of July, reporting on the World Cup for TV Mexico, which will serve most of Latin America. His commentary will also be heard in the United States on the Spanish Television Network, known as SIN.

Pele came to the U.S. from Brazil in 1975 with Julio Mazzei, his close friend and adviser, and is credited with helping the world's most popular sport gain popularity in North America.

There is no player in soccer today who draws the unrestrained love and admiration of fans of all sports the way Pele did.

"Unfortunately, we have very few (individual standouts) at this time," he said. "I don't know, but the minds of the coaches around the world is to play more as a team and they don't give too much chance to a player to create himself.

USE CAREFUL DEFENCES

"Now, they keep too many restrictions on players, using very careful defences."

There have been several opportunities for Pele to return to soccer since he left the Cosmos. Saudi Arabia, for instance, recently asked him to play for a year, but Pele wasn't interested.

"I asked them how many hours I would have to open the valve," Pele said, referring to the country's rich oil reserves.

Pele also said he was offered a coaching job in Brazil when the national team coach, Tele Santana, became ill.

"But I don't want to be in the position of a coach," he said. "I want to work with a team, if I can, but not as a coach.

"I prefer to work behind."

That doesn't mean that the man once declared a national treasure of his native Brazil will never return to the playing field full-time.

"I'm going to rest for two or three years, and then start to think about it," said Pele.

Key putt

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Beth Daniel led throughout a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament, but said it wasn't until her lead slipped to one stroke in the final round Sunday that she knew she had won.

"The putt on one was the key to my round," said Daniel, who fired a three-under-par 69 to take her third LPGA victory this year. "It was a sneaky five-feet to the cup with at least an eight-inch break."

Daniel made it for par and sent her on a record-tying course as she birdied the next three holes. She finished with a three-round total of 203 on the 6,043-yard course at Green Valley Country Club, which tied the tournament record set in 1976 by Jan Stephenson.
