
Oh those Kraft Kings! They don't know it but every time they carve another notch on the silent end of their stick they are making the home-town Blades look better.

The weeping and gnashing of teeth should have stopped around these parts at least by now for the dissapointing show of the Blades against the same Kamloops team in the semi-finals. And how about those smug Bucs from the south? Kings tossed them aside after five tries. You're not overconfident when you lose four and win only one.

But the best news has to be the possibility existing that those same Kings will be hosting the New Westminster Royals out of Vernon Civic Arena next weekend. All they have to do is make sure they win at least one and not more than two fo the first three games thus making a fourth game necessary. The fourth game is scheduled to be played March 26 at nine o'clock. First two games of the series will be played at the coast city this weekend with the third moving to the North Kamloops arena next Friday night.

No games will be played in the Kamloops arena because of previous curling commitments.
