

ASHBY ADDED TO FACULTY

A third National Hockey League player has confirmed he will attend the first annual Enderby Hockey School this summer.

Don Ashby, who spent most of last season with Toronto Maple Leafs, will teach at the school for two weeks.

Head Instructor Joe Tennant had previously announced Bob Nystrom of New York Islanders and Eddie Johnstone of New York Rangers will be at the school.

Tennant said, "I'm very glad Ashby can make it. He is a talented hockey player who will be able to communicate with the youngsters."

To date, more than 200 players have signed up for the school.

Tennant said he expects a phone call from another NHL player today or Thursday. Gary Howatt, also of the Islanders, has indicated he may be able to teach in Enderby and will advise Tennant this week.