

KENDALL'S KORNER

Bathgate leads team to Vernon

One of the greatest players in hockey history will lace up his skates this month in the Vernon Civic Arena.

Andy Bathgate and the National Hockey League Oldtimers will meet the Vernon Oldtimers in a charity game, Nov. 14. The NHL squad will also make stops in Kamloops, Kelowna, and Penitcon on its tour of the B.C. Interior.

In his prime, Bathgate was in the same class as Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita, Johnny Bucyk, and Frank Mahovlich.

He starred for a decade with the mediocre New York Rangers. Bathgate, along with his linemates Earl Ingarfield and Dean Prentice, provided the only offence the Broadway Blues had in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

MOST VALUABLE

In his best season, 1961-62, Handy Andy was named Most Valuable Player in the NHL and tied with Hull for the league scoring title with 84 points.

In 1964, Rangers made a deal that shook the Big Apple as much as a stock market crash. New York sent Bathgate and former L.A. Byng winner Don McKenney to Toronto Maple Leafs in exchange for five players.

That livesome included veteran forwards Bob Nevin and Dick Duff, defence-men Arnie Brown and Rod Seling, and goaltender Jack Norris.

Toronto General Manager Punch Imlach was criticized for giving up too much for the aging veterans. Imlach answered his critics by saying, "I think Bathgate and McKenney will give us a Stanley Cup."

That season, the two old pros were instrumental in helping Leafs win hockey's most coveted prize.

LED EXPANSION

Before his NHL career ended, Bathgate made stops with Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh Penguins.

In the first year of expansion, Bathgate led the NHL's six new teams in scoring, with 59 points, as a member of the Penguins.

Bathgate entertained fans in another city before he retired. He led Vancouver Canucks to two consecutive Western Hockey League championships, in 1969 and 1970.

When Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum was built and Joe Crozier was hired to Toronto, he signed Bathgate to give the team credibility. In the Canucks' final two WHL seasons, prior to joining the NHL, Vancouver was the most successful minor league franchise in hockey. And Bathgate was the WHL's most valuable player... at age 29.

AT BANQUET

In addition to watching him play, hockey fans will get a chance to listen to him and ask him questions at the Vernon Minor Hockey Association's Sportsman's Banquet on Nov. 12.

Joining Bathgate at the banquet will be Jim Harrison and Sid Smith. With them will be two Lady Byng Trophies, as the league's Most Sportswomanly Player; and Harrison played with the 1974 Team Canada squad.

The supporting cast for the oldtimers' game will include Norm Ullman, Mike Felyk, Harrison, Harry Howell, Pat Conacher, Cal Gardner, Pierre Pilote, Smith, Prentice, and possibly Carl Brewer.

Pilote and Howell are former James Norris Trophy winners as the league's best defencemen.

Unfortunately for the fans, but luckily for the opposing goals, Bathgate won't be able to use his deadly slapshot because it is illegal in oldtimers' hockey. He'll have to use his 80 mile per hour wrist shot instead.

Advance tickets for both events are on sale at Ernie's and Al's Esso Service Stations.

Russians will meet either Superior Muffler Huskies or Team Toyota in next Sunday's championship game. Huskies and Toyota clash on Saturday.

Russians, who placed second during the regular season, scored on almost every possession in the first-half. After falling behind 2-6, any thoughts Cobras had of making a comeback were squashed by an interception deep in the Russian end.

Chris Buchanan led the winners well, with touchdowns while Dennis Roberts, Sonny Bob, Bob McCleary, Terry Gibbank, and Barry Schick added an in-jar spire.
