15 GROUNDOUTS

Brewers blank Toronto

By The Canadian Press
 Mike Caldwell had the drop on Toronto Blue Jays.

"I tried mistily to keep the ball down and not throw too hard," said the Milwaukee Brewer's left-hander after feeding the Blue Jays a steady diet of sinker pitches Thursday night.

As a result, the Blue Jays continually beat the ball into the dirt and hit into 15 groundouts and Caldwell wound up with a four-hitter and a 7-0 American League baseball victory.

"Sometimes a sinker-ball pitcher will overthrow," Caldwell explained. "The ball won't get to the plate any faster, but you don't get good movement."

"What it amounts to is the ball stays high and you make a bad pitch. I watch Tommy John of the (New York) Yankees whenever he pitches against us or he's on TV. We're both left-handed sinker-ball pitchers, and I study his mechanics and how he pitches to certain hitters. What I learn from watching Tommy is that I don't have to throw hard as long as I keep it low."

While Caldwell was keeping the ball down, Milwaukee teammates Ben Ogilvie and Cecil Cooper were getting it up, into the seats at Milwaukee's County Stadium. Ogilvie belted a two-run homer and Cooper lined a bases-empty shot.

In the other American League games, it was: Detroit 3, New York 1; Cleveland 4, Texas 3; and Seattle 8, Minnesota 4.

Tigers' Yankee 1, Chet Lemon hit a two-run homer and Jack Morris scattered six hits to lead Detroit over New York. The triumph was the Tigers' sixth straight.

Lemon smashed his first homer of the season, off Tommy John, 8-3, after Lou Whitaker opened the third inning with a bunt which Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles bobbled for an error.

That erased New York's 1-0 lead on a run in the first inning when Dave Collins tripped and scored on a single by Jerry Mumphrey.

Morris, 3-1, walked only one and struck out four.

Mariners 8 Twins 4
 Jim Essian belted two hits and drove in two runs to highlight a seven-run third inning and Riche Zisk added a two-run double in the same frame as Seattle defeated Minnesota.

Mike Moore, 1-2, the nation's No. 1 selection in last June's amateur free-agent draft, registered his first major league victory as he pitched 5.3 innings and gave up three runs.
